2. On the initial faculty survey regarding this issue, the most prominent theme that emerged from the qualitative analysis was the concern about shared governance. Regardless of how you feel about the first question above (3-credit model), what are your thoughts about shared governance in light of the process by which this 3-credit decision was made, along with other recent decisions such as the suspension of Innovative Month courses, the disbanding of the Center for Civic Engagement, putting most faculty on 9-month contracts, or limiting faculty access to the HLC during reaccreditation?
		Response Total	Response Percent	Points	Avg
I am very concerned that the administration and Board of Trustees have made important decisions without faculty input.		87	56%	n/a	n/a
I am slightly concerned that the administration and Board of Trustees have made important decisions without faculty input.		7	4%	n/a	n/a
I am neutral as to what this and other recent decisions mean about shared governance on our campus.		7	4%	n/a	n/a
I am not too concerned that the administration and Board of Trustees have made important decisions without faculty input.		10	6%	n/a	n/a
I am not concerned at all that the administration and Board of Trustees have made important decisions without faculty		45	29%	n/a	n/a
